YOUR PROBLEMS

by Ann Landers

'Law Says A Man Must Support Family'

Dear Ann Landers: The trouble started when I was pregnant with our second child. My husband borrowed money to buy a motorcycle. Believe me, it was the last thing we needed. He lied and said the motorcycle belonged to a fellow he worked with, but I learned different.

He started to stay out late and claimed he was working. I learned he was chasing around with a young motorcycle crowd. I told him to grow up and behave like a father or get out. He improved a lot after that.

Now it is two babies and three motorcycles later. He doesn't run around any more but he's a compulsive spender. He has borrowed money from everybody we know. Our credit rating is disgraceful. I'm afraid to answer the telephone or the doorbell.

He makes good money but we're always robbing Peter to pay Paul. What can a mother of four children do with a nut like this? — BROKE AND IN HOCK

Dear Broke: Tell the nut to hand over his paycheck—uncashed—and settle for a pocket allowance.

Insist that he close all charge accounts. Follow through after one week has passed. If he hasn't closed them — YOU do it.

Get a list of everyone he owes. Start to chip away at each bill, no matter how small the payments. Any show of good faith will be appreciated.

If he refuses to cut out his irresponsible, adolescent behavior tell him to get out and stay out. The law says a man must support his family.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 12-year-old daughter showed up at the dinner table with a bouffant hair-do and black pencil outlining her eyes. I told her to leave the table and come back when she looked like a human being.

Her mother said I was too hard on the child and that all kids like to play at being grown up. She also said it's good for young girls to experiment with make-up and hairdos because it's something they will need to know when they are older.

Since I was outshouted and outnumbered I decided to keep quiet until I wrote to you. Do you believe it's all right for a 12-year-old girl to practice adult hairdos and make-up this way?—ONLY A FATHER

Dear Only: And pray tell, what is she practicing to be—a house-haunter? The only time it's fitting for a 12-year-old to frizz out her hair and pencil-line her eyes is on Halloween.

Your wife is doing the child a grave injustice by encouraging this pre-mature primping. Too many youngsters are robbed of their childhood by over-anxious (Continued on Page 18)

Women Peace Officers Launch Campaign for Las Palmas Pool

Mrs. Maxine Hahn, first vice president of the Los Angeles Peace Officers Assn. and a Torrance Policewoman, is heading the drive for funds to build a swimming pool for Las Palmas School. The campaign was outlined at a kickoff luncheon at the school on June 29.

Las Palmas, the only facility of its kind in Los Angeles County, is a school for badly disturbed delinquent girls between 13 and 17 years of age.

Honorable Mildred Lillie, Justice of the District Court of Appeals, and Honorable Fred Miller, Judge of the Superior Court, are serving as legal advisors for the campaign.

Mrs. Dorothy Kirby, Las Palmas director, points out that these youngsters are "extremely troubled children" and considers the pool a therapeutic device rather than a purely recreational facility. Las Palmas, which replaces the old El Retiro school, abandoned because of age and condition, can accommodate only 99 girls. Only girls with an IQ of 85 or above are admitted.

In congratulating Mrs. Dorothea Gustin, president of the LA County Women Peace Officers Assn., on the choice of project selected by the association, Mrs. Kirby said, "At Las Palmas, we are working with deeply troubled adolescent girls. They tend to be tense, nervous, hostile and often aggressive. A swimming pool is seen as a highly therapeutic treatment tool in working with these youngsters.

For some, when they learn to swim, it marks their first experience in successful achievement, therefore, is highly meaningful. Swimming is an excellent disciplinary tool, too, because it teaches the girls to follow directions and exert self control."

Mrs. Hahn, in explaining the Women Peace Officers' interest in building the pool, said she hopes every community in the county will have a part in the project, since Las Palmas cares for girls from the entire area.

She believes that the fact that law enforcement women are sponsoring the drive will make it clear to the public the importance of the pool as a therapeutic device.

Persons wishing to assist with the rehabilitation of these girls may make their contributions to Mrs. Hahn, Torrance Police Dept., 3231 Torrance Blvd., Torrance.
